Mosque in Russia Makes into Guinness Books of Records

The mosque's architecture is Turkish style and it has a minaret and a central dome.

The largest mosque in the city of Norilsk, Russia, is listed in the Guinness Book of Records as the most northerly-situated mosque in the world. The Nord Kamal Mosque was built by businessman Mukhtad Bekmeyer, an ethnic Tatar native of Norilsk, who named it after his father Nuritdin and mother Gaynikamal. The construction work began in 1993 and its doors were opened to worshippers in 1998. A very large Muslim diaspora lives in Norilsk. Almost a third of Norilsk are Muslims. The main representatives of which are Azerbaijanis, Tatars, Chechens and nationalities of Dagestan. 20 OF THE WORST EPIDEMICS IN HISTORY (Part-2)

11. Russian plague: 1770-1772

In plague-ravaged Moscow, the terror of quarantined citizens erupted into violence. Riots spread through the city and culminated in the murder of Archbishop Ambrosius, who was encouraging crowds not to gather for worship.

The empress of Russia, Catherine II (also called Catherine the Great), was so desperate to contain the plague and restore public order that she issued a hasty decree ordering that all factories be moved from Moscow. By the time the plague ended, as many as 100,000 people may have died.

12. Philadelphia yellow fever epidemic: 1793

When yellow fever seized Philadelphia, the United States' capital at the time, officials wrongly believed that slaves were immune. As a result, abolitionists called for people of African origin to be recruited to nurse the sick.

The disease is carried and transmitted by mosquitoes, which experienced a population boom during the particularly hot and humid summer weather in Philadelphia that year. It wasn't until winter arrived — and the mosquitoes died out — that the epidemic finally stopped. By then, more than 5,000 people had died.

Joining Hands for Nation-Building through Education

Baitussalam Welfare Trust is running various educational institutes all over the country catering to no less than 40,000 students. The education provided includes primary education, O-level, A-level, and religious sciences in urban as well as far-flung rural areas. Moreover, Baitussalam has established schools for Syrian Refugees in Turkey and the border camps.

A huge network of schools requires public support which we have on a monthly basis, Alhamdulillah! Now Baitussalam plans to expand its education network which necessitates a widening of its fundraising mechanism. For this purpose, an educational membership campaign, namely limofy Pakistan, is being launched on a national level in which members shall donate Rs.5000 per month for supporting the educational expenses of Baitussalam.

KEEPING FAITH DURING Tough Times

In hardships and calamities, it is natural to get swept away by the affliction of the moment. During such trials of faith, unless we are careful, Satan can inject fear and plant doubts in our hearts and minds.

Our beliefs in such vulnerable states may become overpowered by feelings of the moment resulting in the dwindling of our faith. Some of us start questioning the fairness and wisdom underlying such divine decisions while others get mired in a blame game. All in all, we may find ourselves lost, helpless, and stalled finding it difficult to gather ourselves and move forward.

For such situations specifically and others in general, Islam teaches us to stay in control by hanging on to the Mercy and Grace of Allah (SWT). We pray that Allah (SWT) keeps us safe from the challenges and trials of life, but as Muslims we should know and understand Quran's message and the Prophet's (SAW) guidance for handling tough moments in life. The following summarizes some of the key guidance related to this matter.

Do not feel helpless
 Even when all doors appear to have been closed, as true believers we should never let feelings of helplessness succumb us. Consider the following Hadith of the Prophet (SAW):

It was narrated from Hazrat Abu Hurayrah (RDA) that the Prophet (SAW) said: "The strong believer is better and more beloved to Allah (SWT) than the weak believer, although both are good. Strive to do that which will benefit you and seek the help of Allah, and do not feel helpless. If anything befalls you, do not say 'if only I had done (such and such), the such and such would have happened,' rather say: 'Allah has decreed and what He wills He does,' for 'if only' opens the door to the work of the shaitan." (Muslim, 2664).

Hazrat Ibn al-Qayyim (RDA) said: This Hadith includes several important principles of faith, including the following: "Do not feel helpless": Feeling helpless is contrary to striving for that which will benefit him, and it is contrary to seeking the help of Allah (SWT).

The one who strives for that which will benefit him and seeks the help of Allah (SWT) is the opposite of the one who feels helpless, so this is telling him, before what has been decreed happens, of that which is one of the greatest means of attaining it, which is striving for it whilst seeking the help of the One in Whose hand is control of all things, from Whom they come and to Whom they will return. If he does not attain what was not decreed for him, then he may feel either of two things: Helplessness, which opens the door to the work of the Satan, so his sense of helplessness leads him to say "if only," but there is nothing good in saying "if only" in this case, rather that opens the door to blame, panic, discontentment, regret and grief, all of which are the work of the Satan.

The Prophet (SAW) forbade us to open the door to his works in this manner, and told us to adopt the second option, which is looking at the divine decree and bearing it in mind, for if it was decreed for him it would never have missed him and no one could have prevented him from attaining it. Hence he said: "If anything befalls you, do not say 'if only I had done (such and such), the such and such would have happened,' rather say: 'Allah (SWT) has decreed and what He wills He does,'" and He taught him that which will benefit him in either case, whether he gets what he wanted or not. Hence this hadeeth is one which a person can never do without." (Shifa Al-Aleel, 37-38)

Revive your faith
 As mentioned in the Hadith above, a strong faith can help us to hold our heads high. When faith seems to be dwindling, we should get back to Quran and remind ourselves that only Allah (SWT) can let us out of our ordeal and problems. You must, therefore, keep that faith and not let Satan instill thoughts that could weaken your faith. Allah (SWT) says in the Quran: "If Allah (SWT) helps you, none can overcome you; and if He forsakes you, who is there after Him that can help you? And in Allah (Alone) let believers put their trust." (Qur'an, 3:160)

A strong faith can keep you focused on the fact that Allah alone ultimately controls all destinies and has power over all things. Remembering that fact alone at the moment of affliction can help you in conquering the pain and provide you hope and the energy to keep moving forward.

Believe in the divine decree

When facing difficulties, our weak faith can sometimes drive us to question the fairness of it all. In this context, we should remind ourselves that believing in Al-Qadr (Allah's divine will and decree) is one of the pillars of Islamic faith. As the Prophet (SAW) said, it means belief in I. Allah (SWT), ii. His Angels, iii. His revealed Holy Books (Qur'an, Bible, Torah, Zabur), iv. His Messengers, v. Day of Judgment and 6. To believe in Al-Qadar (the divine decree) both good and bad. As part of that belief, we should, therefore, recognize that Allah does what He wills for reasons that are only known to Him. Any attempt to comprehend the wisdom of it all using our limited faculties, or to understand how our current situation fits in His overall plan can only lead us to erroneous conclusions resulting in increased frustrations.

We, as Muslims, should accept Allah's (SWT) Decree both as it manifests itself around us and in our lives. It should be a relief to us that only Allah (SWT) is the master of our destiny and we are only going to be tested about whether we reacted to what befalls as true believers and Mo'mins, i.e. being patient in adversity and grateful in prosperity.

Ask for Allah's Mercy and Grace for an out from tough situations. As believers we should recognize that only Allah's Grace and Mercy can deliver us from challenging situations. Allah (SWT) tells us in the Quran: "They after that you turned away. Had it not been for the Grace and Mercy of Allah upon you, indeed you would have been among the losers." (Quran, 2:64)

Another way to ask for Allah's Grace and Mercy is by asking for His forgiveness and seeking repentance. Allah tells us in the Quran: And (commanding you): "Seek the forgiveness of your Lord, and turn to Him in repentance, that He may grant you good enjoyment, for a term appointed, and bestow His abounding Grace to every owner of grace (i.e. the one who helps and serves needy and deserving, physically and with his wealth, and even with good words). But if you turn away, then I fear for you the torment of a Great Day (i.e. the Day of Resurrection)." (Qur'an, Surah Al-Hud: 3)

Stay patient in hard times
 One of the best remedies for tough times is to be patient. It requires that we do not resort to complaining, but remember Allah often.

Remember Allah (SWT) in ease
 We know from the Qur'an that when we remember Allah in good times, Allah will help us in tough times. We learn that lesson from the story of Prophet Yunus (peace be upon him) when he was swallowed by a whale.

Out of His mercy, Allah finally relieved him out of that calamity. He tells us in the Qur'an: "Had he not been of them who glorify Allah, he would have indeed remained inside its belly (the fish) till the Day of Resurrection." (Qur'an, Surah As-Saffaat: 143-144)

Facts, Events & Beliefs

In the modern industrial age, new transport links made it easier for influenza viruses to wreak havoc. In just a few months, the disease spanned the globe, killing 1 million people. It took just five weeks for the epidemic to reach peak mortality.

The earliest cases were reported in Russia. The virus spread rapidly throughout St. Petersburg before it quickly made its way throughout Europe and the rest of the world, despite the fact that air travel didn't exist yet.

14. American polio epidemic: 1916

A polio epidemic that started in New York City caused 27,000 cases and 6,000 deaths in the United States. The disease mainly affects children and sometimes leaves survivors with permanent disabilities.

Polio epidemics occurred sporadically in the United States until the Salk vaccine was developed in 1954. As the vaccine became widely available, cases in the United States declined. The last polio case in the United States was reported in 1979. Worldwide vaccination efforts have greatly reduced the disease, although it is not yet completely eradicated.

15. Spanish Flu: 1918-1920

An estimated 500 million people from the South Seas to the North Pole fell victim to Spanish Flu. One-fifth of those died, with some indigenous communities pushed to the brink of extinction. The flu's spread and lethality was enhanced by the cramped conditions of soldiers and poor wartime nutrition that many people were experiencing during World War I.

Despite the name Spanish Flu, the disease likely did not start in Spain. Spain was a neutral nation during the war and did not enforce strict censorship of its press, which could therefore freely publish early accounts of the illness. As a result, people falsely believed the illness was specific to Spain, and the name Spanish Flu stuck.

16. Asian Flu: 1957-1958

The Asian Flu pandemic was another global showing for influenza. With its roots in China, the disease claimed more than 1 million lives. The virus that caused the pandemic was a blend of avian flu viruses.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention notes that the disease spread rapidly and was reported in Singapore in February 1957, Hong Kong in April 1957, and the coastal cities of the United States in the summer of 1957. The total death toll was more than 1.1 million worldwide, with 116,000 deaths occurring in the United States.

17. AIDS pandemic and epidemic: 1981-present day

AIDS has claimed an estimated 35 million lives since it was first identified. HIV, which is the virus that causes AIDS, likely developed from a chimpanzee virus that transferred to humans in West Africa in the 1920s. The virus made its way around the world, and AIDS was a pandemic by the late 20th century. Now, about 64% of the estimated 40 million living with human immunodeficiency virus (HIV) live in sub-Saharan Africa.

For decades, the disease had no known cure, but medication developed in the 1990s now allows people with the disease to experience a normal life span with regular treatment. Even more encouraging, two people have been cured of HIV as of early 2020.

18. H1N1 Swine Flu pandemic: 2009-2010

The 2009 swine flu pandemic was caused by a new strain of H1N1 that originated in Mexico in the spring of 2009 before spreading to the rest of the world. In one year, the virus infected as many as 1.4 billion people across the globe and killed between 151,700 and 575,400 people, according to the CDC.

The 2009 flu pandemic primarily affected children and young adults, and 80% of the deaths were in people younger than 65, the CDC reported. That was unusual, considering that most strains of flu viruses, including those that cause seasonal flu, cause the highest percentage of deaths in people ages 65 and older. But in the case of the swine flu, older people seemed to have already built up enough immunity to the group of viruses that H1N1 belongs to, so weren't affected as much. A vaccine for the H1N1 virus that caused the swine flu is now included in the annual flu vaccine.

19. West African Ebola epidemic: 2014-2016

Ebola ravaged West Africa between 2014 and 2016, with 28,600 reported cases and 11,325 deaths. The first case to be reported was in Guinea in December 2013, then the disease quickly spread to Liberia and Sierra Leone. The bulk of the cases and deaths occurred in those three countries. A smaller number of cases occurred in Nigeria, Mali, Senegal, the United States and Europe, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention reported.

There is no cure for Ebola, although efforts at finding a vaccine are ongoing. The first known cases of Ebola occurred in Sudan and the Democratic Republic of Congo in 1976, and the virus may have originated in bats.

20. Zika Virus epidemic: 2015-present day

The impact of the recent Zika epidemic in South America and Central America won't be known for several years. In the meantime, scientists face a race against time to bring the virus under control. The Zika virus is usually spread through mosquitoes of the Aedes genus, although it can also be sexually transmitted in humans.

While Zika is usually not harmful to adults or children, it can attack infants who are still in the womb and cause birth defects. The type of mosquitoes that carry Zika flourish best in warm, humid climates, making South America, Central America and parts of the southern United States prime areas for the virus to flourish.

Almost a third of Norilsk are Muslims, the main representatives of whom are Azerbaijanis, Tatars, Chechens and nationalities of Dagestan. There are also nationals of the countries of Central Asia, such as Kyrgyzstan, Kazakhstan, Uzbekistan and Tajikistan. Moreover, there are Russians who have converted to Islam.

The sacrifices made by the philanthropists for the Syrian brothers through Turkish institutions are part of the love and brotherhood that Muslims around the world have for their Muslim brothers and sisters.

The sacrifices were carried out in Karachi and Lahore. Students of Jamia Baitussalam Link Road, and Talagang, worked as volunteers on all 3 days to make this a smooth operation. Other senior volunteers of the Trust were also present on ground to overlook the operations and participated in the distribution too. All put in their hard work only for the sake of Allah (SWT).

All sacrifices made were purely for the ones in needy by people giving their donations for the waqf qurbani program and the meat was distributed amongst the needy all over Pakistan in a timely efficient manner.

May Allah (SWT) accept the efforts of all involved.
